

ABSTRACT

A pull-out guide fitting includes a drawer track to be connected to a drawer, a support track to be connected to a body sidewall, and a center track arranged between the drawer track and the support track. A damping device is arranged between at least two of the tracks, and the damping device includes at least two components moveable relative to one another.